

Companies

Your Companies list is the directory of every operator, DMC and property you work with — here's how to read it at a glance and pull intelligent destination intel on a whole batch at once.

Covers `/dashboard/companies` · for rep, dmc

The screenshot shows the RepBud Companies dashboard. At the top, a yellow notification box explains that contacts are grouped by company and provides a 'Getting started' button. Below this, the 'Companies' section header is followed by a '+ Add company' button. A search bar and two dropdown menus for 'Based in' and 'Sells in' are present. A series of filter buttons categorize companies by type, with 'All (12)' currently selected. The main area displays a list of six companies, each with a checkbox, name, contact count, role, location, and last update time.

The steps

01 Open Companies

Companies is your directory of operators, DMCs and properties. The header shows how many you're tracking.

02 Read a row at a glance

Each row pulls its logo from the company website, then shows the contact count, the type, the country, and a colour-coded last-log badge.

03 Search and filter by type

Search by name, country or type, and tap a type pill to narrow the list.

04 Add a company

Add one by hand with a name, country, type and website — the website is what powers the logo and the intelligence scan.

05 Open the batch scan

Batch Scan reads each company's website and surfaces their destination portfolio — countries, destinations and properties — to help your prep.

06 Choose who to scan

Tick the companies to scan, or use Select unscanned. The "scans remaining" counter shows what your scan pack covers.

07 Run it and read results

Run the scan and watch each company resolve to a count of countries and properties you can act on.

08 Open a company

Open any scanned company to see its full profile and the intel you just pulled.

Questions

What does the colour on the last-log badge mean?

It's a recency cue — green for logged in the last couple of weeks, gold for a month or two back, amber when it's been a while, and grey for "Never logged" so you can see who's gone quiet.

Where does the company logo come from?

It's fetched from the website on record. Add a website and the logo (and the intelligence scan) light up; with no website, you'll see the initials.

What does the batch intelligence scan actually pull?

It reads each company's website and surfaces their destination portfolio — the countries, destinations and properties they sell — so you walk into a meeting already briefed. It's there to assist your prep, not replace your own checks.

Why is the Scan button greyed out?

Scanning spends scans from a pack. If your balance is zero you'll see "Buy 250 Scan Pack" instead — top up, then your selection becomes scannable.
