

Visa and entry requirements

"Do my clients need a visa?" — asked mid-quote, and this answers it with the official source attached. Guidance only: RepBud does not handle, apply for or guarantee any visa.

Covers /tools/visas · for rep, dmc, buddy

The screenshot shows the RepBud website's 'Visa & entry requirements' tool. The header includes the RepBud logo and navigation links: What is RepBud, RepBuddies, RepBud Ready, Reporters, Rover, Tools, Pricing, Sign in, and a 'Start free' button. The breadcrumb trail reads 'Home / Free Tools / Visa & Entry Requirements'. The main heading is 'Visa & entry requirements' with a 'TRAVEL TOOL' tag. Below the heading, a description states: 'RepBud helps you check entry requirements, destination by destination — so you and your clients know what to look into before booking. Tap a country on the globe for guidance, and a direct application link where one applies.' The tool interface features a globe with colored pins for different regions: Africa (green), Europe (purple), Americas (orange), Middle East (yellow), and Asia Pacific (teal). A text box at the bottom of the globe says 'Tap a country pin for its visa requirements'. Below the globe, there is a 'Visa requirements tool' section with a note: 'This tool is provided by VisaHQ. Loading it runs their code in your browser, which may set'.

The steps

01 Open the tool

Entry requirements for 50 destinations, by nationality. Free, no account.

02 Pick the destination

Tap a country on the globe, or use the directory underneath if you would rather read a list.

03 Say who is travelling

Requirements depend on the passport, so choose the nationality rather than assuming one.

04 Read the guidance

What is needed, in plain terms — so you can answer the question in the meeting rather than after it.

05 Check the source

Every destination links to the official source. Use it before anybody books; rules move.

06 It is guidance, not a visa service

RepBud does not handle, apply for or guarantee any visa. It shows you what to check and where the official answer lives — the application itself is always with the issuing authority or a licensed provider.

Next: The trade events calendar

Questions

Is this a visa service?

No. It is guidance with a link to the official source for each destination — RepBud does not apply for anything on your behalf.

How many destinations are covered?

50, by nationality.

Do I need an account?

No. The tool is free and open, with no signup.

How current is it?

Entry rules change, sometimes at short notice. The official source is linked for every destination for exactly that reason — check it before anybody books.

Can I use this to answer a client mid-quote?

That is what it is built for. It is designed to assist, not replace, your professional judgement, so confirm against the source before you commit a client to anything.